CITY'S NEED OF HOSPITAL IS STRESSED

County Medical Society Says Institution Essential To This Community.

Circleville's need of a hospital occupied the attention of the Pickaway-Co. Medical Society which had its regular monthly meeting Monday night at Hamley's Tearoom.

The society, which had previously gone on record as favoring a hospital for Circleville, augmented its stand Monday night by declaring that it is for the best health and well being of Pickaway-co that a hospital be established here.

From a business standpoint, the assembled physicians were unanimous in declaring, it looks bad for the county and its county seat that the hospitals of surrounding cities must be called upon to take care of the local ill.

SAVINGS IS STRESSED
The doctors protested the inconveniences and emphasized the needlessness of taking many cases to foreign institutions when they could obtain speedier, more efficient and more homelike care in their own community.

One physician asserted that if a taxpayer figured up the cost of taking a patient to Columbus and undergoing a minimum amount of care there, he would find that he would make a great saving by care in a home hospital, even taking a possible increase in his taxes caused by a hospital.

It was brought out that 60 per cent of the hospitals in the United States are in cities the size of Circleville, showing that a hospital in a small town does not have to be the elaborate institution found in the larger cities.

FACILITIES PLANNED
Among the things essential to a hospital for a city the size of Circleville, it was declared, are facilities for the care of patients which cannot be provided in their own homes; a maternity ward, children's ward, emergency ward, operating room, and other departments to insure cleanliness and the most up-to-date equipment in the care of surgical and medical cases.

The physicians expressed the belief that if each voter would examine his own conscience in the event of illness or sickness in his own family or in those of his neighbors, the vote for the hospital here will be unanimous.

STATE ATTORNEY RULES ON VOTING

Presidential Electors Must Be Designated On "Scratched Tickets."

COLUMBUS, Oct. 30 — Ohio voters cannot "split the ticket" on presidential electors unless they put a cross by the names of every one of the electors whom they favor, Attorney General Edward C. Turey ruled Monday.

The ruling may be summed up as follows:
Every voter is entitled to vote for 24 presidential electors. If the voter wishes to vote for 23 Republican electors and one Democratic elector, he must put a cross by the name of each of the 23 Republicans he favors.

If the voter puts a cross in the circle at the head of the Republican ticket of electors and then puts a cross by the name of one Democratic elector, only the one vote for the Democratic elector will be good. None of the 23 Republican electors will be credited with a vote.
The ruling was made for the guidance of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown in instructing county election boards.

Police, who have heard that Dempsey has obtained two guns since his escape and has sworn to shoot it out rather than return to the penitentiary, have been given orders to "Bring him in dead, but bring him in."

ROBBER BAND BEING SOUGHT

Organized Gangs Believed To Be Looting Stores In Pickaway-Co.

Sheriff Frank Davis and his department are on a keen lookout for a band of thieves who are apparently on a systematic pilgrimage through Pickaway-co. At present time this band has two raids to its credit, making large hauls on both.

Friday night they entered the Luellen pharmacy in Williamsport and took cigars valued at about $40 and a radio. Saturday night they entered the J. C. Penney Co., N. Court-st., and escaped with a large loot, consisting of furs, coats and other merchandise.

In both cases they entered the stores by cutting glass and unhooking a door or window. At the Luellen store they cut a corner from a glass window in the door and gained entrance.

At the Penney Co., they cut glass from a rear window and gained entrance, the sheriff said. For this reason he believed it is the same gang in both cases.

FOUR ARRESTED IN ROOMING HOUSE

Four persons were arrested Monday night and brought to the city prison by Officers McCrady and Fitzpatrick on statutory charges. Those under arrest were apprehended at the home of Lida Byrd who has a rooming house on E. Ohio-st., according to police.

They gave their names as, Annie Johnson, Letta Ealy, Herbert Dunlap, and Melvin Cockrell. They are believed to be from Chillicothe. Their hearing has not been set.

BITTER STATE RACE NEARING HECTIC CLOSE

Charges and Counter Charges
Are Made in Gubernatorial Contest.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 30.—The Ohio electorate will go to the polls one week from today and determine whether the Republicans or Democrats or a combination of both, will control the state's destinies for the next two years.

The vote will also determine whether Ohio will be in the Hoover or Smith presidential column when the final returns are counted election night.

While the presidential race has created one of the outstanding partisan battles of the century, the state contests likewise have provoked reams of propaganda and have resulted in the exchange of bitter innuendo and charges and counter-charges.

PURCHASE CHARGED
Myers Y. Cooper of Cincinnati, making his third race for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, has been charged with buying his nomination and with harboring plans for buying the election.

Congressman Martin D. Davey of Kent, the Democratic candidate, has been charged with being a Klan candidate, with entertaining religious scruples and with being anti-prohibition in one section and wet in others.

Campaign headquarters of both candidates have delved deeply into records and statistics and both Cooper and Davey have kept busy answering questions, issuing denials, or militantly reaffirming their stand on campaign issues.

BOTH CONFIDENT
Both Cooper and Davey have campaigned actively and each confidently predicts his own victory. Harry D. Silver, campaign manager for Cooper, predicted today that the Cincinnati will sweep the state by a majority of 300,000.

"There is no doubt of his election," Silver declared. "He not only will carry Cincinnati (considered a doubtful sector) but will poll a large majority in Cleveland."

Henry G. Brunner, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, believes Davey will carry the state by more than 100,000. "The Cleveland election fraud 'expose' was the turning point in the state campaign," Brunner believes, and he said he expects Congressman Davey to reap thousands of votes as the result.

For the first time in a decade, the Ohio U. S. Senatorial campaigns have been extremely quiet. While the four candidates—Senator Simeon D. Fess and Theodore E. Burton, Republicans, and Charles V. Truax and Graham P. Hunt, Democrats—have waged militant campaigns, there has been little of sensational nature cropping out.

Similar campaigns have marked the contests for the minor state offices.

CIRCLEVILLE BOYS WARNED BY MAYOR

Circleville youths, in celebrating the advent of Halloween, must not destroy property, Mayor B. T. Hedges declared Tuesday.

Mayor Hedges said that he wants the boys to have all the fun they can during the Halloween season, but asks that they refrain from committing acts which will damage property or frighten women and children.

In making this request, Mayor Hedges said that anyone maliciously or deliberately causing property damage will be treated severely. He asks the cooperation of parents in seeing that the Halloween season will be one of fun rather than of fright or ill feelings.

Child Cries for Life While Man Prays For Death

While a baby in one room broadcasts loudly when its meals are a little late and strives to hold the spark of life within a tiny body a man, aged 52, in another room is slowly smothering the embers of his life by a hunger strike at the Pickaway-co home.

This man, formerly a grocer in Circleville, has lived for 37 days without food, drinking only a little tea or coffee occasionally. The man claims he is lonesome and feels he is a bother on earth to his family and the people at the institution so is determined to leave this life by starvation. He is bedfast and each day grows weaker but refuses all food offered him at the home and does not want medical aid, according to Mrs. H. E. Mowery at the institution.

At one time in his life before he entered the home, the man on the hunger strike weighed about 232 pounds and at the present time his weight is about 135 lbs. Death is expected to overtake him at any time.

At the present time there are 52 persons in the institution, 15 men, and a baby, according to information learned at the home.

BRIDE DIES FROM BURNS

Mrs. Goldie Speakman Succumbs In Lancaster Hospital After Tragedy.

Death at 1:30 p.m. Monday mercifully relieved from intense suffering Mrs. Goldie Speakman, 32-year-old bride of four months who was horribly burned about 6 a.m. Monday when she attempted to replenish a smouldering fire with the aid of kerosene.

Mrs. Speakman, wife of Pearl Speakman of Royalton, was preparing breakfast and when the fire in the range would not burn to her satisfaction she attempted to renew it and poured on a fluid which she supposed was kerosene, but which it is thought was gasoline, as the can exploded and was blown to atoms.

Mrs. Speakman ran screaming to her doorway where her husband found her enveloped in flames. Unable to help her he added his cries to hers and neighbors ran to their assistance. However, they were too late although they extinguished the flames with the assistance of pieces of carpet Mrs. Speakman had inhaled the flames and the flesh on her arms and neck was horribly burned.

Mrs. Speakman is survived by her husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry DeLong, of Revenge, and a sister, Gertrude.

The body was taken from the Lancaster hospital to the funeral parlors of H. E. Defenbaugh at Tarlton and was removed Tuesday to the home of the parents in Revenge. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Grace Reformed church at Clearport, O., with burial in Mt. Carmel cemetery.

Sentence was deferred. It was believed that Cicco's attorneys would file a motion for a new trial later today.

BIG WOMEN'S VOTE IS SEEN

Fair Sex Will Take Important
Part In Election, Signs
Indicate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Both political parties anticipated today that the woman vote in next Tuesday's election will be the largest ever.

Both sides claim they will benefit tremendously from this vote, and many politicians claim that women will vote quite independently of how their "men folks" do.

Such politicians point to known examples of households in which the husband favors one candidate and the wife another. And, they insist, there are thousands of such homes in the country.

Republicans and Democrats alike have worked intensively to stir women voters. The Hoover group sent thousands of postcards to women voters asking them to pledge themselves to get a voter to the polls. Many responses came back. College women, industrial women and housekeepers were organized. Speakers were employed on both sides to lure the woman vote. Women were given important tasks in organizing their districts.

The methods of each party were largely similar. Women have been told that they play a big role in this campaign, and their interest has been spurred as never before. Many authorities believe women are now only coming to a full realization of the importance and scope of "woman suffrage" though this has been effective, nationally, since 1920.

EXPECT RULING IN ELECTION FRAUDS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown is expected to rule, some time today, as to whether three members of the Cuyahoga-co board of elections will be ousted.

Ouster action was recommended by the county grand jury in a special report based on an investigation of alleged election frauds in the county.

The inquiry was conducted under the personal supervision of Attorney General Edward C. Turey who also recommended the dismissal of three of the four members.

Brown and Turner were in closed conference for four hours last night but no statement, other than that drastic action by Brown might be anticipated, was forthcoming.

MARATHON IS ENDED BY GUN

Chicago Skating and Dancing
Endurance Contests Are
Abruptly Terminated

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Chicago's world's championship combined skating and dancing endurance contest was brought to an abrupt close today by a shooting affair in which one man was killed and a patrolman wounded.

William Mazarno was shot and killed at the 131st regiment armory where the contest was being held, by Richard Fishman, a "muscling-in" collector. Fishman fled from the armory and was pursued by Patrolman Hugh McNally. A gun fight ensued which McNally was wounded slightly. Fishman was captured by other police.

It was the second shooting at the armory during the contest and police decided it was enough. Ten patrol wagons were backed up to the armory and 100 spectators. Three skating contestants and three dancing couples were taken to headquarters.

It was Mazarno who disrupted the contest on the previous occasion several weeks ago. He entered and started shooting at an attendant, wounding the man. He was out on $5,000 bond in connection with this shooting.

The skaters were in their 405th hour of continuous rolling and the dancers in the 755th hour of dancing.

SMITH READY FOR WIND-UP

Flays Anti-Saloon League and
K. K. K. In Philadelphia
Speech.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Governor Alfred E. Smith came back to his home sidewalks today to carry on his final intensive efforts for the presidency.

A week from tonight he will sit in his hotel home here and receive the election returns. Until then he will be in constant conferences with the Democratic managers, taking time out for three speeches, in Newark Wednesday, Brooklyn Friday and Madison Square Garden Saturday.

His case before the jury is nearly complete. He finished the last of the evidence in Baltimore last night, the last parade there yesterday afternoon. From now on it will be rebuttal, not a summing up but a real Smith finish.

The last of the evidence was a characteristically Smithian denunciation of the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan. He sought to link both of the organizations activities with the Republican campaign. He pointed to the league statement repudiating Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska Republican, who came out last week for Smith and who has always had the support of even extreme drys.

Comparatively hidden in the speech, behind these charges, was the candidate's first statement of his foreign policy and a declaration against what he called the reactionism of the Republican party on the issues of farm relief, prohibition, water power, and government reorganization.

The statement of his foreign policy was founded upon the text "do unto others you would expect them to do unto you," and it promised peace between the White House and the senate, protection of the international rights of smaller nations, particularly in Latin America and South America and no entangling alliances.

SOUTH OHIO POLL FRAUD UNDER FIRE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The department of justice is investigating alleged election frauds in the Southern District of Ohio. Assistant Attorney General John T. Marshall said today.

Marshall said he had been advised that complaints against alleged irregularities had been lodged with Haveth E. Mau, federal district attorney at Cincinnati.

"Mau has been instructed to use federal agents to make an investigation," Marshall said. "Our attention was called to the situation by Mau, himself, who came to Washington to discuss the situation."

"He returned to Cincinnati with instructions to take what action may be necessary."

DIRIGIBLE IS MAKING FAST TIME ON TRIP

Storm In Mid-Atlantic Fails
To Retard Progress of Huge Craft.

(By UNITED PRESS)

The Graf Zeppelin, riding out a moderate gale in mid-Atlantic with apparent ease, made excellent progress today on her return voyage from the United States to Germany.

The Zeppelin was sighted at 7:15 a. m., today, by the Cunard liner Mauretania, which reported that all was well with the dirigible. The Mauretania at that time was 1690 miles from New York.

The position was figured in statute miles for the United Press by Rand-McNally Co., on the Mauretania's report of her position, which was latitude 45.53 north longitude 41.46 at noon. The dirigible was sighted 50 miles north of that position, but presumably approximately the same distance from New York.

FOLLOWS SHIPPING
The Graf Zeppelin left New York at 3:15 a. m. yesterday. When sighted by the Mauretania, she had been gone 28 hours, which made her average speed 90 miles an hour. Allowing for deviations of the dirigible from a direct course, her speed probably was greater, say 65 miles an hour.

The Graf Zeppelin at that time had followed closely the route of North Atlantic shipping. The Mauretania left Southampton on Saturday.

Because of the weather, it was still possible that the dirigible might veer southwards towards the Azores. The British air ministry at 3 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T.) announced that the Graf Zeppelin would encounter light southerly winds and fair weather if she continued towards the Azores, where the wind was calm and visibility excellent.

CLEAR WEATHER AHEAD
However, a United States weather bureau report issued at Washington at 11 a. m. indicated that the worst of the dirigible's weather troubles would be over soon, even if she adhered to the northern route.

The Washington bureau said a high pressure area extending from north of the Azores to eastern Greenland assured excellent weather for much of the latter half of the journey. The Zeppelin should enter the zone indicated some time today.

RAIDER AND VICTIM UNITED IN WEDLOCK

OMAHA, NEB. Oct. 30.—A romance having its inception in the arrest of an alleged "Queen of the Bootleggers" by a former prohibition officer was climaxed by the marriage of the pair.

Louise Vinci Querra, long termed as "Queen of Nebraska Bootleggers" and Earl Manning, a former dry agent, were married yesterday in the little village of Glenwood, Iowa.

Manning met his bride when he arrested her for violation of federal liquor laws.

The infatuation of the officer for the "Queen" was such that he left his post of duty and for several years has associated with Louise in her work, police said.

A short time ago, Manning was released from Leavenworth prison where he was sent for bootlegging.

TWO SCHOOLS WILL HAVE BOND ISSUES

The voters of the Saltcreek and Madison-twps school districts will be asked to vote on levies for school purposes at the election on Tuesday, Nov. 6. The voters of Madison-twtp will be asked to vote on a one and one-half mill levy for school purposes and the Saltcreek-twtp rural school district voters will be asked to vote on a two mill levy. These levies are not in addition to other levies but are a continuation of a two mill levy voted three years ago. The present levies expire this year. The new levies will renew those now in force and will not go into effect until December, 1929.

The boards of education of the schools will use only such part of the levies as will provide funds for the running expenses of the schools.

Mrs. Goldie Speakman Succumbs In Lancaster Hospital After Tragedy.

Death at 1:30 p.m. Monday mercifully relieved from intense suffering Mrs. Goldie Speakman, 32-year-old bride of four months who was horribly burned about 6 a.m. Monday when she attempted to replenish a smoldering fire with the aid of kerosene.

Mrs. Speakman, wife of Pearl Speakman of Royalton, was preparing breakfast and when the fire in the range would not burn to her satisfaction she attempted to renew it and poured on a fluid which she supposed was kerosene, but which it is thought was gasoline, as the can exploded and was blown to atoms.

Mrs. Speakman ran screaming to her doorway where her husband found her enveloped in flames. Unable to help her he added his cries to hers and neighbors ran to their assistance. However, they were too late although they extinguished the flames with the assistance of pieces of carpet Mrs. Speakman had inhaled the flames and the flesh on her arms and neck was horribly burned.

Mrs. Speakman is survived by her husband; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry DeLong, of Revenge, and a sister, Gertrude.

The body was taken from the Lancaster hospital to the funeral parlors of H. E. Defenbaugh at Tarlton and was removed Tuesday to the home of the parents in Revenge. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Grace Reformed church at Clearport, O., with burial in Mt. Carmel cemetery.

LORAIN DRY AGENT DECLARED GUILTY

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 30.—Louis Cicco, former Lorain dry agent who was charged with shooting to wound Miss Betty Heywood, 22 year old British subject today faced a sentence of six months in the county jail and a fine of $200 as a result of having been found guilty of assault and battery.

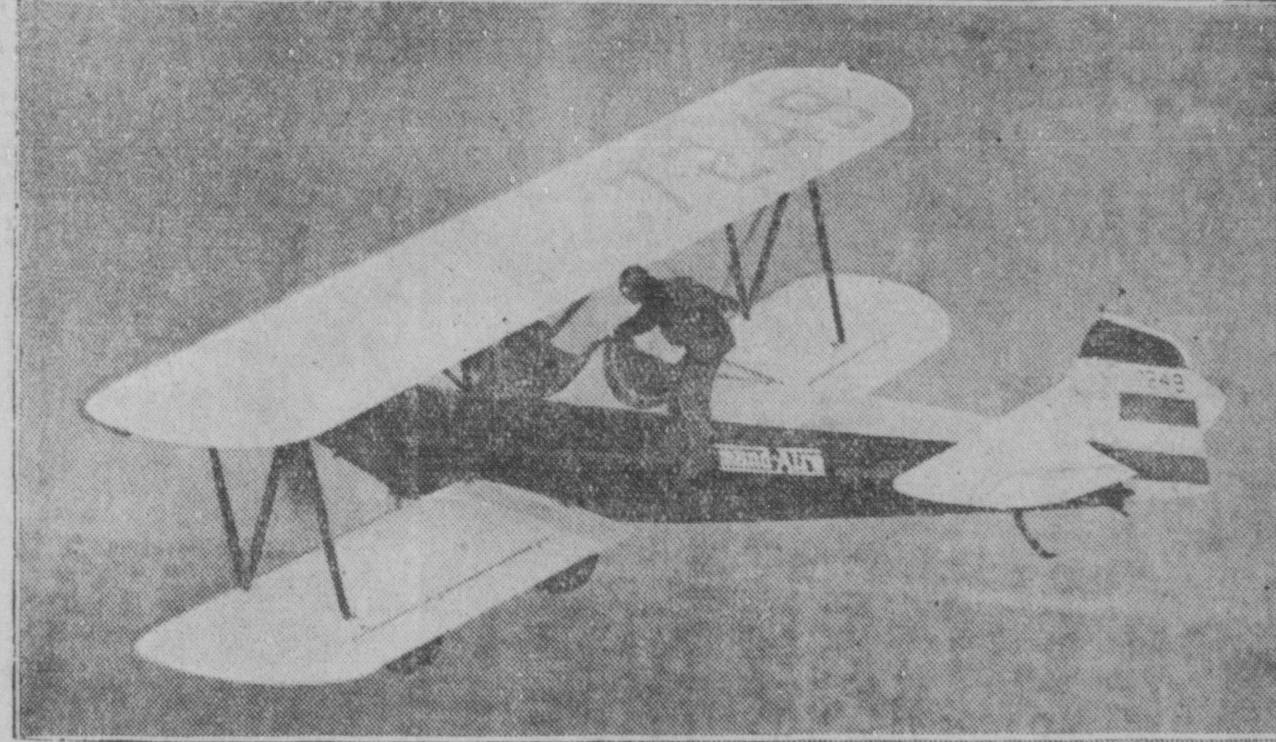

The jury—six men and six women—returned its verdict last night after deliberating two hours. Judge A. R. Webber had instructed the jury of three possible offenses of which Cicco might have been found guilty, shooting with intent to wound, assault and battery, or assault.

Sentence was deferred. It was believed that Cicco's attorneys would file a motion for a new trial later today.

Capt. Bill Vermilya climbing out on the fuselage, where he sat for several minutes while his unguided biplane cut through the choppy air currents a mile above the ground. BIG WOMEN'S VOTE IS SEEN

Fair Sex Will Take Important
Part In Election, Signs
Indicate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—Both political parties anticipated today that the woman vote in next Tuesday's election will be the largest ever.

Both sides claim they will benefit tremendously from this vote, and many politicians claim that women will vote quite independently of how their "men folks" do. Such politicians point to known examples of households in which the husband favors one candidate and the wife another. And, they insist, there are thousands of such homes in the country.

Republicans and Democrats alike have worked intensively to stir women voters. The Hoover group sent thousands of postcards to women voters asking them to pledge themselves to get a voter to the polls. Many responses came back. College women, industrial women and housekeepers were organized. Speakers were employed on both sides to lure the woman vote. Women were given important tasks in organizing their districts.

The methods of each party were largely similar. Women have been told that they play a big role in this campaign, and their interest has been spurred as never before. Many authorities believe women are now only coming to a full realization of the importance and scope of "woman suffrage" though this has been effective, nationally, since 1920.

MARATHON IS ENDED BY GUN

Chicago Skating and Dancing
Endurance Contests Are
Abruptly Terminated

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—Chicago's world's championship combined skating and dancing endurance contest was brought to an abrupt close today by a shooting affair in which one man was killed and a patrolman wounded.

William Mazarno was shot and killed at the 131st regiment armory where the contest was being held, by Richard Fishman, a "muscling-in" collector. Fishman fled from the armory and was pursued by Patrolman Hugh McNally. A gun fight ensued which McNally was wounded slightly. Fishman was captured by other police.

It was the second shooting at the armory during the contest and police decided it was enough. Ten patrol wagons were backed up to the armory and 100 spectators, three skating contestants and three dancing couples were taken to headquarters.

It was Mazarno who disrupted the contest on the previous occasion several weeks ago. He entered and started shooting at an attendant, wounding the man. He was out on $5,000 bond in connection with this shooting.

The skaters were in their 408th hour of continuous rolling and the dancers in the 758th hour of dancing.

SMITH READY FOR WIND-UP

Plays Anti-Saloon League and
K. K. K. In Philadelphia
Speech.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Governor Alfred E. Smith came back to his home sidewalks today to carry on his final intensive efforts for the presidency.

A week from tonight he will sit in his hotel home here and receive the election returns. Until then he will be in constant conferences with the Democratic managers, taking time out for three speeches, in Newark Wednesday, Brooklyn Friday and Madison Square Garden Saturday.

His case before the jury is nearly complete. He finished the last of the evidence in Baltimore last night, the last parade there yesterday afternoon. From now on it will be rebuttal, not a summing up but a real Smith finish.

The last of the evidence was a characteristically Smithian denunciation of the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klu Klan. He sought to link both of the organizations activities with the Republican campaign. He pointed to the league statement repudiating Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska Republican, who came out last week for Smith and who has always had the support of even extreme drays.

Comparatively hidden in the speech, behind these charges, was the candidate's first statement of his foreign policy and a declaration against what he called the reactionism of the Republican party on the issues of farm relief, prohibition, water power, and government reorganization.

The statement of his foreign policy was founded upon the text "do unto others you would expect them to do unto you," and it promised peace between the White House and the senate, protection of the international rights of smaller nations, particularly in Latin America and South America and no entangling alliances.

SOUTH OHIO POLL

FRAUD UNDER FIRE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—The department of justice is investigating alleged election frauds in the Southern District of Ohio, Assistant Attorney General John T. Marshall said today.

Marshall said he had been advised that complaints against alleged irregularities had been lodged with Haveth E. Mau, federal district attorney at Cincinnati.

The charges, he said, involve registrations in southern judicial counties.

"Mau has been instructed to use federal agents to make an investigation," Marshall said. "Our attention was called to the situation by Mau, himself, who came to Washington to discuss the situation."

"He returned to Cincinnati with instructions to take what action may be necessary."

DIRIGIBLE IS MAKING FAST TIME ON TRIP

Storm In Mid-Atlantic Fails
To Retard Progress of Huge Craft.

(By UNITED PRESS)

The Graf Zeppelin, riding out a moderate gale in mid-Atlantic with apparent ease, made excellent progress today on her return voyage from the United States to Germany.

The Zeppelin was sighted at 7:15 a. m., today by the Cunard liner Mauretania, which reported that all was well with the dirigible. The Mauretania at that time was 1690 miles from New York.

The position was figured in statute miles for the United Press by Rand-McNally Co., on the Mauretania's report of her position, which was latitude 45.53 north longitude 41.40 at noon. The dirigible was sighted 50 miles north of that position, but presumably approximately the same distance from New York.

FOLLOWS SHIPPING

The Graf Zeppelin left New York at 3:15 a. m. yesterday. When sighted by the Mauretania, she had been gone 28 hours, which made her average speed 60 miles an hour. Allowing for deviations of the dirigible from a direct course, her speed probably was greater, say 65 miles an hour.

The Graf Zeppelin at that time had followed closely the route of North Atlantic shipping. The Mauretania left Southampton on Saturday.

Because of the weather, it was still possible that the dirigible might veer southwards towards the Azores. The British air ministry at 3 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T.) announced that the Graf Zeppelin would encounter light southerly winds and fair weather if she continued towards the Azores, where the wind was calm and visibility excellent.

CLEAR WEATHER AHEAD

However, a United States weather bureau report issued at Washington at 11 a. m., indicated that the worst of the dirigible's weather troubles would be over soon, even if she adhered to the northern route.

The Washington bureau said a high pressure area extending from north of the Azores to eastern Greenland assured excellent weather for much of the latter half of the journey. The Zeppelin should enter the zone indicated some time today.

RAIDER AND VICTIM UNITED IN WEDLOCK

OMAHA, NEB., Oct. 30.—A romance having its inception in the arrest of an alleged "Queen of the Bootleggers" by a former prohibition officer was climaxed by the marriage of the pair.

Louise Vinci Querra, long termed as "Queen of Nebraska Bootleggers" and Earl Manning, a former dry agent, were married yesterday in the little village of Glenwood, Iowa.

Manning met his bride when he arrested her for violation of federal liquor laws.

The infatuation of the officer for the "Queen" was such that he left his post of duty and for several years has associated with Louise in her work, police said.

A short time ago, Manning was released from Leavenworth prison where he was sent for bootlegging.

The voters of the Saltcreek and Madison-twop school districts will be asked to vote on levies for school purposes at the election on Tuesday, Nov. 6. The voters of Madison-twop will be asked to vote on a one and one-half mill levy for school purposes and the Saltcreek-twop rural school district voters will be asked to vote on a two mill levy. These levies are not in addition to other levies but are a continuation of a two mill levy voted three years ago. The present levies expire this year. The new levies will renew those now in force and will not go into effect until December, 1929.

The boards of education of the schools will use only such part of the levies as will provide funds for the running expenses of the schools.

Princeton Game to Show Strength of Buck

HARD CONTEST IS AHEAD FOR WILCE ELEVEN

Guards Are Seen As Weak Points In Tiger Line For Saturday's Game.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 30.—Ohio State's home-coming game with the Princeton Tigers Saturday should definitely establish the Bucks' strength thus determining the Scarlet and Gray's chances against the formidable Iowa and Illinois teams.

Princeton last year beat State 20 to 0, but the Buckeyes were not the fighting, bone-crushing, stubbornly defensive team they are this year and for once the "down-town" coaches believe Ohio will twist the Tiger's tail.

A comparison of team strength however, reveals the Tiger probably will be as strong as he was last year, and the only difference will be that Ohio State is considerably stronger.

WEAK AT GUARDS
Observers, after keeping carefully prepared statistics on Princeton's games this year, believe the guard positions are the Tiger's vulnerable spots and if this is true, State's defensive problem should be made less difficult.

The Tiger has always placed considerable reliance on a line-smashing game but thus far the Scarlet and Gray's line has been impregnable. Four teams—three of them Big Ten conference outfits—have tried, without avail, to pierce it.

As regards Ohio, her best yard-gaining plays include the criss-cross and flank runs, a rather dangerous forward passing attack and several triple threat men, all of whom are seldom thrown for a loss.

One thing in State's favor this year is the fact that Princeton is suffering from injuries while the Buckeyes, with the exception of Kruskamp, are in fairly good condition.

HOPE RESTS ON GAME
Ohio's Big Ten title hopes, undoubtedly rest on the outcome of the game. Should the Tigers unleash a smashing attack Ohio will be endangered from the injury standpoint and will go against Iowa and Illinois, her last remaining Big Ten foes, a weakened team.

If, on the other hand, the Bucks can ward off the jungle cat, even though it leads to defeat, they will be in condition to meet the only other aspirants for the conference crown.

Columbus—four days before game time—was football mad today. The stadium, according to officials, is completely sold out and thousands of old grads are seeking standing room.

A formidable celebration will mark Saturday's game and for the first time in years special trains are bringing alumni and alumnae from points in the far west.

Record Season At Races Seen In New Orleans

New Orleans Track Receives 70 Requests For Stable Reservations.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 30.—Seventy stables whose entries aggregate approximately 500 thoroughbreds already have sent in requests for stable reservations for the opening of the racing season at Jefferson Park here Nov. 30.

A record season was forecast, partly because of the lateness of the schedules at Maryland tracks and the anxiety of horse owners to keep their "babies in action" as much as possible.

Stable facilities at the famous Fair Grounds track will be brought into usage during the custom in past recent years, in order to accommodate the crush of entrants. Likewise, when the racing season opens at the Fair Grounds track Jan. 1, stable facilities at Jefferson will be utilized for housing surplus horses.

Police activity against New Orleans bookmakers this summer has resulted in a dearth of betting places, it was said, and the largest crowd on record are expected to flock to the two tracks during the coming meet, impelled by a desire to bet their money away from the hazard of police confiscation or interference.

Increased and improved conditions will be inaugurated at both tracks to place them on a parity with some of the best eastern and central western tracks.

"THE LOPING GAZELLE"

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

Arthur C. (Dazzy) Vance at the age of 35 a veteran as ball players go but during the 1923 season, with the sixth place Brooklyn Dodgers, he turned in a record of 22 victories against 10 defeats. The big red-faced pitcher again reigned supreme in the strike-out division, topping the National League hurlers by fanning 200 opposing batters.

During the past seven years in the older circuit, Vance has proven to be one of the most consistent pitchers in the league. His career is similar to that of Charley Root, of the Chicago Cubs, Ed. Roush, of the Philadelphia Athletics, Tony Kaufman, also of the Chicago Cubs, and Jess Petty, team-mate of the "Dazzler" with the Robins, in that world's series glory has never been theirs to share.

When the Robins won the National League pennant in 1920, Vance was then toiling with the Memphis and New Orleans teams in the Southern association. In bolstering his pitching staff for the 1922 campaign, Uncle Wilbert Robinson sent Larry Sutton, Robins scout to New Orleans to look over a pitcher named Phillips. Sutton reported back to the Flat-bush headquarters with the advice "Thumbs down on Phillips, but buy Vance." Squire Ebbets demurred, but finally Sutton received permission to buy Vance.

HAS HIGHEST SALARY
He did and the terms for the sale were $1,000 down with $4,000 more if he made good. Today, Vance is probably the highest salaried pitcher in the National League, and has been the best find ever made by Sutton.

The Dodgers once were noted for being strong pennant contenders every four years, concurrent with the presidential year. Since 1912 the Brooklyn team has won three National League pennants, and were dangerous contenders in 1924. The 1924 season found Vance at his best, being voted the most valuable player in the league and figuring prominently in the success of the Dodgers with a record of 23 victories and 5 defeats.

However even with the famous "Dazzler" in the line-up the Robins were eliminated as pennant contenders by the New York Giants just two days before the close of the 1924 season. That is as near as Vance has gotten to a world's series, as a player.

Since joining the Robins, Vance has been the most capable performer on the mound for Manager Robertson. Vance won 18 games and lost 12 in his first year, the season of 1922. The previous year he was known as the strike-out

Chicago business men and trained by the renowned Jack Lowenstein, the young thoroughbred will race.

king of the "Minors," with a record of 193 strike-outs.

STRUCK OUT.
For 1922, Vance retired 134 batters by the strike-out route. The next year he won 18 games, but lost 15 and struck-out 197 hitters. In 1924, he was at the peak of his career, winning 28 games, losing six and striking out 262 batters. For the season Vance allowed an average of only 2.16 earned runs per game in 35 games.

Following the 1924 season, his record, while not the best, compares favorably with the leading hurlers in the league. In 1925, Vance won 22 games and lost nine for the lowly Robins. That year Vance pitched the only no-hit game of the season on Sept. 13, against the Philadelphia Phillies. He was slow in getting started in 1926, turning in nine victories and 10 defeats, and striking out only 140 hitters.

During 1927 season, Vance won 22 games and lost 10, setting his strike-out mark at 184. And this year, another presidential year, found him once more hitting his stride, winning 22 games, losing 10, and striking out 200 hitters.

M'GRAW LAUNCHES ANNUAL SHAKE-UP

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—John McGraw has started his shakeup of the New York Giants early by trading Outfielder Frank (Lefty) O'Doul to the Philadelphia Phillies for Outfielder Fred Leach. The Giants also paid an unnamed sum to the Phils.

O'Doul came to the Giants last year in the draft from the Pacific Coast league and batted .314. He was out of the game part of last season with a broken leg.

Leach has been with the Phillies for four years, batting over .300 each season. He batted .305 this year.

SEATS SOLD OUT
WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 30.—The Army's allotment of tickets for the Army-Notre Dame football game at Yankee stadium has been oversubscribed by more than 10,000. Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at West Point, announced. The seating capacity of Yankee stadium for the game is 80,000.

TEX SEEKING DICTATOR IN FIGHT GAME

Promoter Says Cauliflower Industry Needs a "Judge Landis."

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Having been head man in the boxing game for nearly a decade, Tex Rickard now is prepared to stoop to conquer.

The promoter, famed for his arrogant disregard of the authority of commissions, confessed to the United States press his willingness to have boxing regulated by the authority of a high commissioner.

Rickard proposes the establishment of a "Judge Landis" of the cauliflower industry, with arbitrary powers to settle disputes, recognize champions, fix prices and purses and do all those things which the high commissioner of baseball does for the national pastime, including assure its prosperity.

It is a sign of the times in boxing when Tex advances such a suggestion. It comes as an acknowledgement from the shrewdest man in the game that boxing must be regulated from a sporting point of view, rather than from a strictly financial viewpoint.

Since 1921, when he introduced the first "battle of the century" at Boyle's Thirty Acres at prices never equalled before or since, Rickard became the one man boss of boxing. Commissioners, local and national, tried to tell fighters and promoters what they should do, but Tex paid the piper and called the tune.

When the New York state athletic commissioner tried to regulate the heavyweight situation during Jack Dempsey's championship days, its efforts were ludicrous. Dempsey talked only with Rickard and Rickard talked only with gold. Tex made the matches and champions toed the line for him and grew rich thereby.

Thus Rickard ruled after his fashion, until the pocketbooks and the interest of the customers became as flat as the contenders. Now Tex is ready to cry quits and how to the authority of some "Judge Landis" who could save the boxing game from the limbo of public indifference.

TEX SEEKING DICTATOR IN FIGHT GAME

Promoter Says Cauliflower Industry Needs a "Judge Landis."

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Having been head man in the boxing game for nearly a decade, Tex Rickard now is prepared to stoop to conquer.

The promoter, famed for his arrogant disregard of the authority of commissions, confessed to the United States press his willingness to have boxing regulated by the authority of a high commissioner.

Rickard proposes the establishment of a "Judge Landis" of the cauliflower industry, with arbitrary powers to settle disputes, recognize champions, fix prices and purses and do all those things which the high commissioner of baseball does for the national pastime, including assure its prosperity.

It is a sign of the times in boxing when Tex advances such a suggestion. It comes as an acknowledgment from the shrewdest man in the game that boxing must be regulated from a sporting point of view, rather than from a strictly financial viewpoint.

Since 1921, when he introduced the first "battle of the century" at Boyle's Thirty Acres at prices never equalled before or since, Rickard became the one man boss of boxing. Commissioners, local and national, tried to tell fighters and promoters what they should do, but Tex paid the piper and called the tune.

When the New York state athletic commissioner tried to regulate the heavyweight situation during Jack Dempsey's championship days, its efforts were ludicrous. Dempsey talked only with Rickard and Rickard talked only with gold. Tex made the matches and champions toed the line for him and grew rich thereby.

Thus Rickard ruled after his fashion, until the pocketbooks and the interest of the customers became as flat as the contenders. Now Tex is ready to cry quits and bow to the authority of some "Judge Landis" who could save the boxing game from the limbo of public indifference.

CAMPAIGN LOG

Tuesday, Oct. 30.
(By UNITED PRESS.)

Gov. Alfred E. Smith returns to New York after his Baltimore speech last night in which he assailed the Ku Klux Klan and Anti-Saloon League as allies of the Republican party. He denounced the Anti-Saloon League as perpetrators of political blackmail. Touching upon his foreign policy he outlined it as one of "do unto others as ye would be done by" and one which would avoid foreign entanglements.

Herbert Hoover continued his preparations in Washington for his California trip which begins Thursday. Associates said he had taken up plans as to where he would spend his time if elected between election day and presidential inauguration day, March 4.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, claims Oklahoma, Nebraska, Minnesota and Montana for Smith in disputing Dr. Hubert H. Work, chairman of the Republican committee, who said these states would go for Hoover. Raskob said that farm organization authorities in Chicago told him over the phone that Smith's strength was tremendous among the farmers.

Continuation of the policies of the Republican party by the election of Herbert Hoover was urged by Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon in a radio speech over a nation-wide hook-up last night.

Senator Moses, New Hampshire Republican, speaking at a New York rally, said Smith "seems to pin his dwindling hopes" upon the liquor issue.

"Glaring evidence" of the Republican party's responsibility for "religious proscription" in the campaign was pointed out last night by Breckenridge Long, a Presbyterian and former assistant secretary of state in "the unconscionable appeal by its agent," Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Long spoke over the radio.

Conservation of high wages and sound business as the purpose of the Democratic party if its ticket is elected was described by Senator Joseph T. Robinson in an appeal to the small merchant and banker at Springfield, Illinois. The Democratic vice-presidential nominee described Republican prosperity as "spotted."

Senator Charles Curtis, Republican vice-presidential nominee, assailed Smith's tariff policies, at South Bend, Ind., as he continued his final invasion of the midwest. He also attacked Smith's farm relief and immigration policies.

C. A. C. CIRCUS PROVES TO BE BIG SUCCESS AT ITS OPENING

'Great Mott' Strong Mari Extraordinary, and 'Sparkle' Top Fine Bill.

Eight nimble red plumed ponies trotting, cakewalking and waltzing around the ring, are only a part of the indoor circus that is showing this week at the Circleville Athletic club. A circus band led by Homer F. Lee adds its touch of reality to the first class and unusual performance.

Circus fans hear the familiar call of popcorn and pink lemonade as they enter the gymnasium which makes a splendid "big top." The clowns of the show are the real thing. They are headed by Frank Stout who was the leading clown for Barnum and Bailey for years. Two others with faces that only clowns could paint are Dan Roby and Alfred Levanon. Dan is a Scotch clown, which nativity he proclaims by a tam o' shanter that tops a most remarkable makeup. Levanon is French and knows all the antics of the true French punchinello. Erma Stout, the fourth clown, is the only woman in the country in the clown business.

The outstanding trapeze act is by Miss Hattie Zasada who performs on the aerial swinging ladder. She also shows astounding strength in her iron jaw act where she swings over the audience holding by her teeth.

DOGS ENJOY STUNTS

Mae Barton is in charge of the dogs and monkeys that ride the ponies. The dogs go through their tricks of dancing with what appears to be keen enjoyment. One dog was featured in an act of jumping the rope. As the dogs completed their tricks they jumped from the ring, ran half way the length of the gym and then planted their feet and slid the remaining distance to their corner. Mae Barton also was in charge of the ponies in military formations that climaxed with a flag raising.

Mr. Foster with her dog act mastered the animals with a pleasant gentleness. Here two animals, a black and a white goat display startling ability and intelligence as they teeter totter and vie with the canines in their tricks. The black goat surprised the spectators by leaping to the back of one of the ponies and riding nonchalantly around the ring.

There is also a clown band that really outdoes its name as "the world's worst musicians." The clowns also have some antics that are new and extremely funny.

"GREAT MOTT" ASTOUNDS Silver King and Major Harry, two beautiful dancing horses, would be stars in the largest three ring circus anywhere. Their performance is splendid. Silver King dances with bells on his feet. The horses are ridden by Miss Barton and Mlle. Foster.

No circus would be complete without the strong man and in this circus "The Great Mott" is one of the outstanding acts of the show. He bends a half inch iron rod over his nose and makes a steel bar 1-4 inch by 1/2 inches into a veritable fleur-de-lis design. Among other acts he grips an ordinary kitchen table by one corner with his teeth, and walks around with the table on a level with his eyes. He also lies down on the points of more than 300 nails that are studded into a board. A regulation sized anvil is then placed on his stomach, and two clowns proceed to strike the anvil with sledge hammers as the circus band obligingly plays "The Anvil Corus."

Possibly the most remarkable feat of the circus is the last act by Mr. Art Eldridge, America's foremost horse trainer, and his educated horse "Sparkle." This remarkable horse adds, subtracts, and kicking up her heels teaches her master as part of the show. Sparkle won her audience completely when she was asked to pick out her favorite colors, and picked up a concealed American flag and waved it in her mouth.

PONIES ARE APPLAUDED

The military ponies perform in great style in a finale of poses and prancing formations. These fat little ponies with Mr. Eldridge in charge win the applause from bleachers. All the kiddies as well as the grownups, who think they are addicted to drama and Grand Opera alone, find themselves applauding the ponies and their master. The indoor circus is a show for every member of the family, and there is room for everyone on the bleachers erected in the big gymnasium. It will be presented each night this week at 8:15, 10:15 and 11:15.

DENIED WORK, BOY COMMITS SUICIDE

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—A 12-year old boy committed suicide here because his parents would not permit him to quit school and go to work.

The boy, Edward Zlotorowicz, asked for permission to stay home from church yesterday "to read a book."

As soon as the family had left, Edward took the lead from his dog's collar, climbed on a chair and fastened the lead to a nail. He adjusted a noose around his neck and then kicked the chair away.

He was found by a brother. Adrenalin and oxygen failed to revive the boy. The parents said he had pleaded for permission to get a job and that he brooded over the refusal.

MARTIN WILL IS BEING CONTESTED

Howard Martin has filed suit in common pleas court to contest the will of Thomas A. Martin, deceased of Pickaway-co, against Orpha E. Martin, minor, Joseph Martin, Maynard Martin, Frank Martin, and Fred Wright, executors of the estate of Thomas A. Martin, and Russell Martin, a minor over 14 years of age.

On Sept. 11, 1928, Thomas A. Martin, an uncle of the plaintiff, died leaving the defendants as heirs at law.

On Sept. 22 a certain paper bearing the date of Aug. 15, 1928, was admitted to probate.

The plaintiff says the paper is not the last will and testament of T. A. Martin, and asks that an issue be made up as to whether it is the last will and testament and that the same be set aside and for such other relief as is proper.

DENIED WORK, BOY COMMITS SUICIDE

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—A 12-year old boy committed suicide here because his parents would not permit him to quit school and go to work.

The boy, Edward Zlotorowicz, asked for permission to stay home from church yesterday "to read a book."

As soon as the family had left, Edward took the lead from his dog's collar, climbed on a chair and fastened the lead to a nail. He adjusted a noose around his neck and then kicked the chair away.

He was found by a brother, Adreanin and oxygen failed to revive the boy. The parents said he had pleaded for permission to get a job and that he brooded over the refusal.

GREAT IS THE LORD — For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our lawgiver, the Lord is our King; he will save us. — Isa. 33:22.

THE PRIVILEGE OF VOTING

Many of our people here in Ohio have not seemed to value the privilege of voting. If they had lived in some autocratic country, where tyrannical rulers or selfish aristocracies handed out whatever government they saw fit, these folks would realize what a blessing popular government is. They would want to do their part to keep making it a success.

Popular government gives every citizen the chance to protect his own rights. If one is afflicted with evils which can be remedied, the ballot gives him his chance. If he is suffering from certain grievances, there will be a lot of people who also suffer. If they unite and act together, their vote will be heard.

But popular government does not run itself. If the voters neglect the privileges of the ballot, selfish people will use it in their own interest, and democratic government will fail to assure the public welfare.

COUNTING THE BALLOTS

An enormous job of vote counting lies ahead of the ballot clerks of Ohio and the rest of the country this year. It will be larger than ever before, since the vote is likely to be so much heavier than usual. The returns will therefore be later than usual, and unless the result is one-sided, the public may not know for certain who is elected president for several days.

In these days when the remotest country village is usually well supplied with telephones, it should be an easy thing to get returns in promptly.

Different states and localities vary in the promptness with which they count and return the election votes. In some states it seems to be a matter of pride to get them counted immediately, and practically the complete vote is apt to be known by the early morning of the day after election.

But in many states the returns drag along for days, until it would seem as if some of the election officers had put the figures in their pockets and were waiting until they had a chance to drive into the nearest town before delivering them. The very long and complicated ballots used in some states constitutes a legitimate reason for delay. In many localities there are too few ballot counters, which makes the counting of the vote a prolonged process.

The public should be patient about its election returns, and not expect the impossible on this big job of counting. Yet the election officers everywhere should realize that the people are keenly eager to get the news. Those that make a special effort to get the vote counted promptly and telephone the figures immediately to the proper center, perform a service which is much appreciated by the newspapers and the public generally.

ELECTION DAY

There is something very majestic about the voice of a great nation speaking on election day its verdict about the affairs of its own government. It speaks with a more powerful voice than king or emperor could ever use. Even the most mighty potentate had to bend to a large extent to the desires of his people. If he offended them too far, he would be overthrown.

But when the voice of the people speaks on election day, there is no going behind it. It is final and irrevocable. It speaks as a master that will tolerate no control, and that constitutes itself the final law to which all must yield.

There is something very noble also in the theory of a democratic country, which gives equal power to the learned and the unlearned, to the rich and the poor, to the vicious and the well meaning. In earlier days of history, the idea of giving equal power to all citizens was scoffed at by philosophers. They held that it was wrong to give a man of weak will and judgment and character, the same power that is given to those who are fine and noble and wise. They held that a nation so ruled must say that for the protection of the common people, the weak must have the same voting power as the strong. They hold that the people in the long run will tend to follow the wisest leaders, so that any mistakes made would be temporary and quickly corrected.

The correctness of these principles has been vindicated by time. We give the ignorant man the same voting right as the educated, but the educated and common sense people have a power of influence not limited to their own vote, and in the main it rules the country. So we all listen to this majestic voice of the people as it shall be expressed on Nov. 6, ready to do its will and accept its verdict.

And what ought to be remark'd (with a godly Fear, in this false Conduct) is, that Men, instead of procuring a Blessing by neglecting the Sabbath, oft times draw down from Heaven upon their Heads the Curse of Poverty, or Discontentment, or Spiritual blindness, so that the Neglect of the Sabbath generally leads to Misery in this World, and is a certain Forerunner of Misery in the next.

Let the Law of God then, which is the only true Rule, direct you; and then you will always remember to keep holy the Sabbath day.

Min. — Covetousness is the Parent of many evils; it alienates the Soul from God, and joins it to Earth, and so separates the Soul from the Fountain of Good, and fixes it in the Abyss of endless Misery. This poison'd all the divine Motions of Balaam, and made him more vile than the Ass he rode than the ass he rode on. This also filled the Heart of Simon Magus with the Gall of Bitterness, and lead all to Hell that are ruled by it.

And what is very remarkable a judicial Infatuation generally attends this idolatrous Sin, inasmuch that scarce any covetous Man believes he is so, and therefore few Sinners of this kind ever amend, because they are not sensible of their malady.

Broadway Love

by Thomas Edgewood

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR?

WHEN Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor, dies, his young and pretty daughter, Janet, obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario, while her brother, Frank, an actor, goes South. Janet makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and Dr. David Churchill, a doctor. Montague insults her. Janet becomes Dr. Churchill's secretary. He tells her he is in love with her and contemplates divorcing his wife, so Janet gives up her position and goes to live with Chester Quigg, Leonard's artist uncle, and his charming daughter, Alice. She learns how to placate old Mrs. Quigg, Chester's mother, and generally makes life pleasant for the Quiggs. Her brother, Frank, returns home broke and in debt, and accepts $1,000 from Leonard, secretly. In the meantime Janet is falling in love with Leonard. She goes driving with him in his new car, and they quarrel and he calls her a gold digger. The next morning he sends her a small gold shovel and when he phones she hangs up. Frank admits accidentally that Leonard has lent him the money to pay his debts, and introduces Janet to Cora Niles, his sweetheart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

LIKE many others connected with the arts, Janet rarely glanced at a newspaper. So she never read of the serious illness of John Montague, and the first intimation that she received on the subject was when his secretary telephoned.

"This is Miss Robbins speaking," came a voice, and Janet vaguely remembered the woman who looked like a horse. "Miss Wilde," she went on tearfully, "he is not going to live—and he's asking for you."

"Mr. Montague is dying?" Janet echoed.

Miss Robbins went on, punctuating her sentences with sobs. It appeared that John Montague was dying in his apartment above the theatre, because with characteristic obstinacy he had refused to be taken to a hospital. He was insisting upon seeing Janet.

"But, of course, I would have come!" Janet assured Miss Robbins. "Why didn't you send for me before?"

"There was difficulty with that Lucille Rhodes," the secretary explained. "She had been trying to keep everybody away from him, and it was only just now with a sort of artificial strength, Mr. Montague was able to assert himself. Will you please hurry?"

It was somewhat of a shock to Janet on entering his bedroom, to find John Montague propped up with pillows, a whiskey by his side.

"They tried to stop me having a farewell drink," he said with much of his old manner, as he held out his hand to Janet, "but they couldn't do it. My train is due to go at any moment, and I made a hoot of difference if I had a drink or if I didn't. Sit down!"

"You don't seem to have changed," Janet remarked, taking the chair he indicated. "Same old temper."

"I want to talk about you," he said roughly. "Are you sane, or womanish?"

"Oh, fairly sane," she smiled.

"I want you to do me a favor," he said, staring at her from under his bushy eyebrows. "Don't beat about the bush—will you, or won't you?"

WHEN Fenimore Wilde, famous Broadway actor, dies, his young and pretty daughter, Janet, obtains a job with John Montague, theatrical impresario, while her brother, Frank, an idler, goes South. Janet makes friends with Leonard Quigg, a temperamental musician who loves her, and Dr. David Churchill. When Montague insults her, Janet becomes Dr. Churchill's secretary. He tells her he is in love with her and contemplates divorcing his wife, so Janet gives up her position and goes to live with Chester Quigg, Leonard's artist uncle, and his charming little daughter, Alice. She learns how to placate old Mrs. Quigg, Chester's mother, and generally makes life pleasant for the Quiggs. Her brother, Frank, returns home broke and in debt, and accepts $1,000 from Leonard, secretly. In the meantime Janet is falling in love with Leonard. She goes driving with him in his new car, but they quarrel, and he calls her a gold digger. The next morning he sends her a small gold shovel and when he phones she hangs up. Frank admits accidentally that Leonard has lent him the money to pay his debts, and introduces Janet to Cora Niles, his sweetheart.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXXIII.
LIKE many others connected with the arts, Janet rarely glanced at a newspaper. So she never read of the serious illness of John Montague, and the first intimation that she received on the subject was when his secretary telephoned.

"This is Miss Robbins speaking," came a voice, and Janet vaguely remembered the woman who looked like a horse, "he is not going to live—and he's asking for you."

"Mr. Montague is dying?" Janet echoed.

Miss Robbins went on, punctuating her sentences with sobs. It appeared that John Montague was dying in his apartment above the theatre, because with characteristic obstinacy he had refused to be taken to a hospital. He was insisting upon seeing Janet.

"But, of course, I would have come!" Janet assured Miss Robbins. "Why didn't you send for me before?"

"There was difficulty with that Lucille Rhodes," the secretary explained. "She had been trying to keep everybody away from him, and it was only just now with a sort of artificial strength, Mr. Montague was able to assert himself. Will you please hurry?"

It was somewhat of a shock to Janet on entering his bedroom, to find John Montague propped up with pillows, a whiskey by his side.

"They tried to stop me having a farewell drink," he said with much of his old manner, as he held out his hand to Janet, "but they couldn't do it. My train is due to go at any moment, and I made the fools admit that it didn't make a hoot of difference if I had a drink or if I didn't. Sit down!"

"You don't seem to have changed," Janet remarked, taking the chair he indicated. "Same old temper."

"I want to talk about you," he said roughly. "Are you sane, or womanish?"

"Oh, fairly sane," she smiled.

"I want you to do me a favor," he said, staring at her from under his bushy eyebrows. "Don't beat about the bush—will you, or won't you?"

intelligence to use the income and not spend the capital. If I had been a few years younger, you'd be a very rich woman in a few hours, because I would have married you whether you wanted it or not. You'd be sitting there by the bed wishing I'd hurry up and wondering exactly how many millions I'd put up for. And you're a nice child."

Rather feebly he raised Janet's hand to his lips. The nurse, conquering her resentment, came back into the room.

"You can go—but remember your promise! No refusals, and no giving it away—the capital, I mean," John Montague smiled wryly at Janet.

Stooping over the bed, Janet kissed the dying man's forehead. "Had to be dying to get that hadn't it?" he flashed at her, and then closed his eyes, and lay quiet as Janet left the room.

In the hall near the tiny elevator, Janet encountered Lucille Rhodes. The great star nodded unpleasantly.

"Mr. Montague was asking for you," she said in a patronizing voice. "Nearly every chorus girl on Broadway has tried to see him, as his secret charities were so vast."

"I suppose you mean to be rude," Janet answered mildly. "It hardly seems worth it at such a time, and I don't mind being called a chorus girl. I like them."

Janet went back to the studio, where she told Chester Quigg what had happened.

"You'd have been a fool to have refused it," he decided. "I don't suppose it's much, but whatever it is, people will talk."

"Why?" Janet asked.

"Oh, they'll say that there was something between you and Montague," Chester went on. "I know the world, and that's what they'll say. It will be in your hands to decide if it's important or not."

"I don't care what people say!" Janet exclaimed. "I liked him to-day, and he was so brave. I hope I go as bravely when my time comes."

"The one who will make trouble by gossiping will be Lucille Rhodes," Chester surmised. "She will imply everything—leave it to her."

"You forget that John Montague and my father were friends for many years," Janet put in.

"That won't make any difference," Chester laughed, pulling his Van Dyke beard. "A spiteful woman can imply anything, and a little think like a fact will have nothing to do with it. But I'm glad you had the sense to accept his offer."

"He hasn't any near relatives, and he obviously wanted me to accept—so why shouldn't I?" Janet retorted wisely.

And in the early hours of the following morning, Janet was awakened by the telephone. It was Miss Robbins who called to tell her that John Montague was dead.

Did You Ever Stop To Think

By Edson R. Waite
Shawnee, Oklahoma

JAMES P. HOLLAND, PUBLISHER OF THE WARTOWN (WIS.) TIMES, SAYS:

THAT wise merchants in any city do their trading home and thereby set a good example for the community in which they live and do business. In some towns merchants have the bad habit of doing their own trading in larger cities, thereby creating distrust among their patrons, who will be inclined to follow the example set by the dealer, and this in turn destroys the harmony which should exist in every community.

The buyer concludes that if the goods sold by the merchant are not good enough for the merchant they are not good enough for himself and thereby attaches the habit of trading away from home.

THE MERCHANT BY STICKING TO HIS OWN TOWN, NOT ONLY SETS A GOOD EXAMPLE TO HIS HOME FOLKS BUT ATTRACTS BUYERS FROM NEARBY TOWNS AND VILLAGES WHO CANNOT AFFORD TO CARRY LARGE STOCKS, AND THEIR COMMUNITIES ARE SMALL.

His Best Behavior
Edgar's mother was to entertain a woman at dinner who had a reputation for being very critical, and on that account he had been cautioned to be on his best behavior at the table.

Dinner went along smoothly until the salad course was being served and conversation lagged momentarily, when he piped out, "Mother, am I doing all right?"

MARRIAGE LICENSE

Arley Rutter, 24, laborer, Stella Hook, 29, both of C. ville.

JAMES P. HOLLAND, PUBLISHER OF THE WASHINGTON (WIS.) TIMES, SAYS:

THAT wise merchants in any city do their trading at home and thereby set a good example for the community in which they live and do business. In some towns merchants have the bad habit of doing their own trading in larger cities, thereby creating distrust among their patrons, who will be inclined to follow the example set by the dealer, and this in turn destroys the harmony which should exist in every community.

The buyer concludes that if the goods sold by the merchant are not good enough for the merchant they are not good enough for himself and thereby attaches the habit of trading away from home.

THE MERCHANT BY STICKING TO HIS OWN TOWN, NOT ONLY SETS A GOOD EXAMPLE TO HIS HOME FOLKS BUT ATTRACTS BUYERS FROM NEARBY TOWNS AND VILLAGES WHICH CANNOT AFFORD TO CARRY LARGE STOCKS, AND THEIR COMMUNITIES ARE SMALL.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

HALLOWEEN FETE IS HONOR EVENT FOR
SEN. CHAPPELEAR

Costumed gilded and hobbobins dressed with court queens and characters too numerous to write marched together Tuesday night in the weird spectacle that was the grand march at the Halloween carnival of the Circleville Order of the Eastern Star. More than 150 members joined in the flicking good time that had been cleverly planned by the committee in charge.

As soon as the guests had all assembled, they found their partners for the promenade which served to show their costumes before the few that sat on the sidelines unmasked and who had paid their dues for the privilege of enjoying the masqueraders.

masking which changed Spanish toreadors, ghosts, skeletons and witches into the familiar members of the Order. Some startling identities were revealed, amid the merriment and fun that only a Halloween masquerade can evoke.
Only a few of the guests were positively known before the un-masking.

Mrs. G. L. Schear, worthy matron, gave a charming speech which welcomed the guests to an evening of frolic and Halloween abandon.

Among those present were three important officers of the district.
These were Worthy Grand Matron
Mrs. Savella Johnson, of Celina,
Grand Secretary of Ohio, Mrs.
Bessie F. Boice, of Columbus, and Grand Chaplain, Mrs. Harry Keller, also of Columbus. These officers served as competent judges in the selecting of the prize winners for the prettiest, funniest, and most original costumes.

The prize winners were Miss Marie Hamilton, an old-fashioned lady; Miss Eva Black, a court lady; Mrs. Ed Helwagen, a negro mammy; Mrs. Noah Spangler, a clown; Mrs. Bill Donohoe, an Indian; Mrs. Weagley of Chillicothe, little Red Riding Hood.

Among the guests in an insignificant and impromptu costume, was another personage of whom the Circleville O. E. S. and all of Circleville are very proud and who unostentatiously was honoring the carnival with his presence. In fact the members of the order had taken this opportunity to honor
C. C. Chappellear, who recently in Cleveland was made the Worthy Grand Patron of the Grand Chapter of Ohio. Mr. Chappellear, unaware of the honors about to be paid him, was enjoying the fun as only one of the ordinary guests.

Then Mr. Harry G. Stevenson, Worthy Patron, made a short address to Mr. Chappellear, praising him and spoke of the honor felt by the local chapter in having such an eminent member. Mr.
Stevenson presented to Mr. Chap-pelear $50 in gold as a gift from the chapter in recognition of the great honor that had been bestowed upon him.

In reply Senator Chappellear thanked the officers and friends, and displayed to them a great basket of large, long stemmed yellow chrysanthemums that had been sent to him in Cleveland by the district in which the Circleville chapter is included. These flowers were on the stage as part of the decorations for the carnival.

The officers from out-of-town then each had a few words to say in praise of the famous member of the Circleville organization.

Mrs. G. L. Schear, worthy matron, said that she had still another honor to bestow on Mr. Chap-pelear, and on behalf of the chapter, she gave him a life membership in the Circleville Chapter Number 90 of the Order of Eastern Star. The honored member again thanked his friends with speech of appreciation for what had been offered him.

Following the honors that were paid to Mr. Chappellear, the Halloween antics continued in full sway with everyone entering the spirit of the carnival and making without ANY help of the kind.

What Doctors Say

About the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clearup the condition with some laxative made with CASCARETS, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

But if you DON'T know the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:
The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner mankind has yet found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days... With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

So, the very next time you feel
any aid, as time goes on.

MASK PARTY
IS GREAT SUCCESS

Ghosts, Indians, Quakers, Darkies, Farmers, Mexicans and nearly every sort of people under the sun frolicked together Tuesday evening at the U. B. community house. After the grand march prizes were awarded to Ross Kirkpatrick, having the best adult costume and to Jack Brown and Charlotte Hegele the best children's. There were also some second prizes given and also to those in the guessing contest who guessed the most correctly who the masked ones were.

An interesting program followed led by Willis Camp, vice president of the Intermediate Christian Endeavor.

After some splendid Victrola records, the lights were lowered and Ruth Long told a ghost story.
Loren Peters played a violin solo accompanied by Lucile Kirkwood.
Mrs. Fannie Greeno, dressed like an old colored mammy gave a very realistic reading, "Mandy's Wedding." The old familiar poem
"The Death of the Flowers," was read by Mrs. Agnes Accord, followed by the old song, "Long, Long Ago," sung by Mrs. Ellen Hegele and Mrs. Greeno.

The climax of the evening came when Mrs. Maude Peters, told an exciting breath-taking ghost story with no light only as shed by the weird glow of a single dark red globe. Those who were there will not forget soon, the thrilling tale which she so skillfully brought to a realistic end.

A merry social hour followed,
during which delicious refreshments of sandwiches, pickles, homemade cake and coffee were served to the large crowd present.
A very enjoyable time was had by all, young and old, who spent the happy evening together.

shiny-surfaced metal cloths—dull, lusterless crepes, princess, molded bodies—softly bloused bodies;
there are just a few fashion points which disclose the approval given ideas that are as diametrically opposed as north and south.

There never has been a season in recent years when there has been such a wealth of ideas presented for evening wear.

The hemless finish on nearly all frocks and suits coming from exclusive houses is the telltale note.
This finish is always associated with the skirt cut on circular lines, whether in cloth or silk, and again, whether the garment is a tailored or softly fashioned type.

In cloth skirts, the practice is to finish the very narrow, turned-back edge which serves in lieu of a four or five inch regulation hem with several rows of machine stitching. In frocks of flat, satin or canton crepe, a narrow bias binding is employed, giving practically the same effect of hemlessness.

At a recent fashionable outdoor event, where the dividing line between custom-made and ready-made clothes is conveniently drawn by a fence that encloses members of the smart set within their own club grounds, the difference in hemline finish was quite pronounced.

Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. Neud-ing will visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. O. B. Atwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Kinney, of Philadelphia, were guests
Tuesday of Mrs. C. J. Delaplaine, of N. Scioto-st.

County Commissioner Burr Rader, who has been ill at his home in Pickaway-town for several weeks was a little improved Tuesday night.

Earl Holderman from Pueblo, Colo., is visiting his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs.
Fred Newhouse, on E. Main-st.

Mrs. John F. Small returned Tuesday night to her home in Norfolk, Va., after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A.
Bates, of E. Main-st.

TRUCKS BREAK 2
MANHOLE COVERS

Heavy trucks on N. Court-st have broken two manhole covers in the street in front of the Dr.
G. S. Corne property. When the first one broke it was replaced with another which in turn cracked under the heavy loads, according to L. E. Miller, service director.

Miller has ordered an extra heavy cover hoping the trucks can not damage it, and in the meantime a barrel with a lantern on top has been placed in the street to warn persons of the hole.

ACTRESS DIVORCED

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—
Claire Windsor, screen actress, was granted a final decree of divorce from Bert Lytell, film player, in superior court yesterday.
They were married at Juarez, Mexico, in May, 1925. "I'm through being a one-man woman," the actress said. "Boy friends? Yes, just as long as they are plural."

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions recommend "Pape's Diap-sin." "Pape's Diapsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and food corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. You may have felt that nothing can help your particular difficulty, but so have others to whom this remedy proved a pleasant surprise.

TELLS OF TRIP EAST

RECENTLY MADE
J. L. May, wife and son, Virgil, have just returned from a trip in the east. At Ranell, W. Va., they visited one of the largest hardwood lumber yards in the world.

At Richmond, Va., a tobacco house where they have thirty-one million pounds of tobacco stored.
At Washington D. C., they visited many places of interest. Among them, the engraving bureau. The paper from which the currency is made all comes from Massachusetts with the silk thread woven in which is one of the secrets. The paper is automatically dampened, then left ten days to dry then one side is printed, which is left ten days more before the other side is printed. This makes thirty days for the completion of the bill. The life of a bill is three months. The largest denomination is $10,000 and $5, 000,000 is made daily, which is counted twenty times. Five thousand people are employed of which two-thirds are women.

The unknown soldier's grave, is a great honor to the memory of the soldier dead. The Washington cathedral contains the tomb of Woodrow Wilson, who is the only president to be buried in Washington. At the request of his wife, Admiral Dewey, was removed to the cathedral and lies opposite the tomb of Woodrow Wilson.

The cathedral, which is now under construction, will require at least ten years for completion.

Mr. and Mrs. May were in the home of Barbara Fritchie in Frederick, Md., from where she waved the Union flag before the passing Confederate troops on that bright

September morn of 1862. The

Fashions

The Stage Mirrors the Mode of the Longer
Skirt

—NEW YORK, Oct. 30 (U.P.)—
The opening of the theater season in New York, always a time of speculation and interest to literary and social circles, provides for the fashion observer extra stimulation in the styles projected by stage celebrities, and the confirmation of silhouette trends, already launched, by smart women on both sides of the footlights.

The longer skirt has been applauded on its effective entrance in most of the smart plays. The swathed hipline, from which draperies float or dip in the attenu-ated line, makes for grace and has won many of the audience prejudiced against longer skirts.

Incidentally a survey of evening fashions among smart audiences indicates an approval of white satin among women who are intent on emphasizing their summer tan. A particularly effective gown in white faille of the period genre was noted recently, completed with long cape wrap of the same fabric with high wired standing collar.
